Fair Housing Plan Pushed By Katzenbach

WASHINGTON (AP)--Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach plugged for the administration's civil rights bill in an appearance before a House Judiciary subcommittee yesterday.

He spoke at length on the fair housing provision, which would ban racial discrimination in the sale, rental and financing of all housing.

The provision has been challenged by Senate minority leader Everett Dirksen, (R--Ill.), who claims it is unconstitutional.

Katzenbach argued that the power of Congress to regulate commerce between the states is applicable to housing.

"There can be no doubt that anything which significantly affects the housing industry also affects interstate commerce," he said.

"Discriminatory housing practices produce such an effect,"

They restrict the amount and type of new housing, discourage the repair and rehabilitation of existing housing, remove incentives to the purchase of new furniture and appliances and frustrate the efforts of people to move from job to job and from state to state," he added.

Rodgers Leads Blood Donations

Rodgers was the leading dormitory in the recent "Viet Nam Bleed-In" donations with 50 pints.

The bleed-in held last Wednesday and Thursday exceeded its 350 pint quota by 66 pints.

Other leading dormitories were: Kohl Hall, 29 pints, East 17, and West 16.

Phi Delta Theta led fraternity donations with six pints. Alpha Tau Omega gave four pints.

Phi Mu led the sorority donations with five pints while Alpha Delta Pi and Gamma Phi Beta both donated four.

Ninety-two pints were donated from persons living off campus.

The forecast for today is increasing cloudiness and much warmer. The high 70-75. Tonight, cloudy and not so cool. Partly cloudy and cooler tomorrow.

Party Conflict Hinted

HONG KONG (AP)--Red China's army newspaper yesterday reported that Mao Tze-Tung's ideology is at stake in the emergence of a rebellious group in the Chinese Communist Party.

The report, heard here in a broadcast from Peking, appeared to hint that some influential elements in the party seek a reconciliation with the Soviet Communists.

Political experts have suggested that any marked change in leadership or policies in Red China might pave the way for mending relations with the Soviet party.

They point out that this could mean a great deal economically and perhaps result in modernizing China's armed forces.

The present political leadership in Red China has accused Krenmlin leaders of revisionism and reversion to capitalist ideas.

The army newspaper was seen as speaking for both the Communist party and the armed forces command when it demanded elimination of "the blank line of bourgeois, anti-party, anti-socialist revisionism."

It says rebellion against party leadership is widespread and serious and adds: "It is a struggle to the death between us and them."

U.S. Planes Hit VC Supply Line

SAIGON (AP) -- American B-52's pounded the southern end of the main Viet Cong supply route again yesterday in the continuing drive to cripple the Communist's expected monsoon offensive.

For the seventh out of the past eight days, the high-flying Stratofortresses unloaded their 750-pound bombs on suspected enemy supply and troop areas in the Communist C Zone, about 65 miles northwest of Saigon near the Cambodian border.

U.S. planes flew 301 sorties over South Viet Nam, but bad weather grounded all air force strikes over North Viet Nam and the navy flew only eight missions there.

In the most significant of the sorties over South Viet Nam, air force and navy fighter-bombers attacked a suspected Viet Cong battalion near Can Tho, 70 miles southeast of Saigon. Pilots claimed destruction or damage to more than 100 buildings in the face of heavy ground fire.

The bad weather in the North foreshadowed the onset of the May-to-August monsoon season in the South.

With the monsoon rains due, the Viet Cong are expected to open a fresh offensive after hiding out for the past three weeks.

The Communists have capitalized on this period in the past because the incessant rains sharply curtail U.S. air support of ground forces.

On the ground, American marines killed 29 Viet Cong in two actions.

The U.S. command announced that troops of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division, in an operation they began 20 miles northwest of Saigon on April 27, have killed 12 Viet Cong and seized 17 suspects.

Australia's build-up of its forces began Tuesday with the arrival of the transport "Sydney" bringing 400 men and 300 trucks, weapons carriers and other equipment.

This is the first contingent of 4,500 men due between now and mid-June to replace 1,500 Aussies who have been in Viet Nam since August.

Conklin Holds 'College Bowl'

Sixty students from 15 dormitories are competing in the Conklin Hall "College Bowl," based on the televised General Electric College Bowl program.

University professors have composed two types of questions for the four-man teams. Professors also judge the competition.

Six teams will compete tonight in three matches: Conklin Hall vs. Harmon Hall at 8 p.m.; Harshman B vs. McDonald East at 8:30 p.m.; and Kohl Hall vs. Harshman D at 9 p.m.

Four teams were defeated Tuesday night in the competition at 105 Hanna Hall.

"The College Bowl is hoped to increase spirit and competition among the dormitories, and it is also hoped to become an annual event," according to Robert DeBard, Conklin Hall counselor.

Semi-finals and finals will be held Wednesday. The winning team will be awarded a trophy.

Anteans Tap 12 Greek Men

Twelve fraternity men were tapped for membership in Anteans society, men's Greek leadership honorary, yesterday morning.

Members tapped included: Craig Procaro, Pi Kappa Alpha; James Treeger, Zeta Beta Tau; Steve Taflinger, Sigma Chi; James Meyer, Alpha Tau Omega; Irvin Brandel, Phi Delta Theta; Thomas Brauen, Kappa Sigma; William McKee, Theta Chi; Ron Moore, Sigma Nu; Floyd Ramsier, Phi Kappa Tau; Tim Rhodes, Delta Upsilon; Don Stricker, Beta Theta Pi; and Gary Schueltz, Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

The goals of Anteans are to recognize men who have dedicated themselves to betterment of the University fraternity system and promotion of the overall atmosphere of cooperation among members of the Greek system.

Let Council In

A resolution passed in Student Council last week requests that Faculty Senate admit the President of the Student Body and/or his delegate to Faculty Senate meetings.

The proposal, co-sponsored by Tom Liber and Dick Seaman, was designed to better the communications between faculty and students.

Communication was one of the major issues in the recent Student Body elections. Both candidates for the presidency agreed that the lack of effective communication was hindering the campus.

One of the most important aspects of campus communication is faculty-student interchange of thoughts and ideas. This process could be aided to a great extent by increased communication between each factor's highest body--Faculty Senate and Student Council respectively.

Such a plan would allow Faculty Senate to hear the ideas and content of discussion that accompanied the Council's passages of measures.

At the same time it will provide a means for the opinions of the faculty to be brought back to Council.

In an attempt to improve communications and report happenings of Faculty Senate to the entire Student BODY, The News sought, and finally attained, admittance to Senate meetings.

It seems logical that since this first big step has been taken in opening Senate meetings, the next step should be permitting a Council representative into the meetings.

Eliminate Student Vote?

To the editor:

One of the privileges of the Student Body is to vote for May Queen and her court. This is and has been a tradition at our University.

Suddenly, this year, someone decides that a panel of judges should pick the Queen. Does this panel of judges have the right to infringe upon the decision already made by the Student Body?

I feel that it devalues the decision made by the students who took the time to vote. It is entirely possible that our choice could be reversed and even eliminated. Is this fair?

Rah 69ers

To the editor:

I'd like to give some deserved recognition to a spirited group who have taken it upon themselves to help inspire our freshman class in all their activities, and to encourage them to maintain the great enthusiasm they have shown this year.

I believe there are six members of this group, all freshman men, who call themselves the "69ers," and they are sincere in their wish to serve as communication between the freshman class and the Student Cabinet.

They resemble SIC-SIC in their purpose and nature, but are dedicated to the Class of 1969.

Already their efforts have been seen in signs promoting freshman competition, encouraging the class to raise their voting percentage, and in thanking the blood donors.

I think our leaders and all the classmates should be thankful that there are some people truly concerned with our class unity enough to organize and work towards this end.

My personal thanks, certainly, goes to these guys. More classmates of this spirit would certainly make our class "the" best in years.

The 'Right' Opinion

Profs Lack In Student Stimulation

By DAVID BRUNNER
Columnist

A wide variety of classroom situations exist at the University. All of us have been enrolled in and exposed to many different courses, so we can assume we have been exposed to a wide variety of teaching techniques.

How many of these classroom techniques are providing a climate of mental stimulation? How many are providing the opportunity to think and learn?

I believe very few. I also believe the time has come when professors should abandon their antiquated, non-educational techniques of "uninterrupted lectures" that last for 18 weeks.

Presently too many professors provide no student stimulation. They don't stimulate the student to think. The student is lectured to for 50 straight minutes on information which is often dull and uninteresting.

Students learn through discussion with other's ideas and interpretations, not through continuous lecturers and "one man's view."

Some professors, very few, however, have adopted an open discussion type situation in the classroom. The professors have structured their courses so the necessary material is included, but he allows the student to "think" and draw some of his own conclusions.

Some of these professors profess they are the "ultimate authority" and are never wrong. I was informed where one professor was lecturing on Medicare and a student, when recognized, suggested something other than what that professor was saying. The professor, slammed his book, said he would not be told he was wrong and immediately left the room.

The professor often feels he is the "god of the classroom" and never allows for an open, stimulating, thinking-type discussion on differing concepts.

A professor should be challenged. He should allow free discussion to take place on materials within his course. This is where the student finds the needed stimulation for thinking and learning.

The only way to prove the merit or significance of this type approach is to ask students who have taken or are taking such professors.

These professors provide stimulation as well as curiosity. They develop interest as well as uncertainty. They allow thinking as well as questioning. They encourage progress toward learning, not educational stagnation and regression.

Election Results Prove Interesting

By GRACE PHENEGER
Columnist

Tuesday's primary elections have produced some interesting results--some predictable, others not so predictable. There was little doubt, for example, that the University of Toledo would become a state university.

But there was considerable doubt that Mrs. Lurline Wallace of Alabama would take the state's Democratic primary by such a sizeable margin that she would not have to face a run-off election.

With respect to the latter, Mrs. Wallace entered the election contest so that she could fill her husband's chair until he is eligible to run for re-election.

The vote was exceptionally heavy in Alabama, with some voters standing in line for more than an hour to cast their ballots. Although the Negro vote was concentrated in favor of her primary opponent, Attorney-General Richard Flower, Mrs. Wallace had a tremendous lead.

The most probable reason for this is that the many minor candidates in the race stole votes from Flower without affecting the number of votes cast for Mrs. Wallace.

In Ohio, Governor James Rhodes was a foregone conclusion as the Republican candidate. In November he will face State Senator Frazier Reams, who won an equally predictable spot on the ballot. Both will begin campaigning for the November election very soon. The issues will have among them mental health and aid to education.

Not quite so predictable was the effect which the re-apportionment of the Ohio legislature had on the primaries. There have been a number of instances reported of persons going to the polls to vote for their favorite candidates and failing to find their names on the ballots.

Without the voter's realizing it, he had been apportioned into a different district.

But if some voters were in for a rude awakening, so were some incumbents in the legislature who had been apportioned out of their former districts and found themselves having to start from the beginning to build new support.

For example, State Senator Ross Pepple, who had become accustomed to winning the Republican primary in his old district which included Lima, found himself losing badly when he ran yesterday for the first senatorial district which included part, but not all, of Lucas County.

Because of these situations, State Senator Frank King is predicting that he will receive increased support for his battle against the current apportionment scheme, which was settled upon by a three man apportionment board rather than by the legislature or the voters.

But there were things other than the candidates decided at the polls Tuesday. Hundreds of school districts, for example, had operating levies and bond issues on the ballot.

The results of these, as well as city and county money issues were mixed. Every money issue on the ballot in Lucas County (Toledo) passed. Bowling Green's school money issues failed.

Perhaps one of the most interesting quirks of the election was the Waterville charter, which was passed by one vote--an absentee ballot.

Another particularly interesting procedure this year was the decision by the Wood County Board of Elections that University students living off-campus could vote in Bowling Green instead of having to vote absentee from their homes.

Previously, no student who did not reside in Wood County prior to his becoming a student could vote in the city.

Opera To Debut In May

Grand opera will make its debut here May 21 and 22 with performances of Verdi's "Il Trovatore," to be produced by the School of Music.

Members of the music faculty have been cast in the lead roles of the opera, which will be conducted by Dr. Fiora Contino, director of choral activities. The chorus and orchestra will consist of University students.

A civic committee, "Friends of the Opera," has been formed to give area opera goers an opportunity to support the venture. Membership is available to persons contributing a minimum gift of $10.

Seating preference will be given to members who join before May 10. Tickets will go on sale to the public after that date.

The opera will be presented in the Main Auditorium.

Mrs. William T. Jerome, wife of the president of the University, and chairman of an advisory council to "Friends," heads a committee of civic leaders who have expressed their support of the opera.

Honor Society Reactivated

Psi Chi, national psychology honorary society, has been reactivated here after several years of inactive status and has initiated 11 new members, all undergraduate psychology majors.

The society is an affiliate of the American Psychology Association. Dr. Pietro Badia and Dr. Cecil Freeburne of the psychology department will be advisors to the society.

Students initiated were: Jerry Schlater, who was elected president for the remainder of the school year; John Holian, vice-president; Diane Zentgrebe, secretary; Richard Mancuso, treasurer; and Jane McKeever, Janet McReynolds, Janet Gillespie, Robert Tiell, George Persely, David Schaub and John Cosmos.

Negro Impact Cited In Alabama Elections

NEW YORK (AP)-- Roy Wilkins, head of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), said yesterday that Alabama Negroes need not be discouraged by the heavy segregation vote in Tuesday's Democrat primary elections.

Wilkins issued a statement here saying Negro voters had an impact upon the conduct of the elections in Alabama even though many candidates supported by Negroes were defeated.

In Birmingham, Dr. Martin

Luther King termed the landslide victory of gubernatorial candidate Mrs. Lurleen Wallace "an attempt by whites to turn back the tide of inevitable progress."

Mrs. Wallace has pledged to continue the segregation policies of her husband, present Alabama Governor George Wallace, who is prohibited by law from seeking another term this year.

Dr. King said plans are being made to file formal complaints about election procedures in some Alabama counties.

Pershing Rifles Win Honors In Drill Meet

The University's Army ROTC Pershing Rifle squad returned home from the Case Invitational Drill meet against six other teams in Cleveland last weekend with several trophies and medals.

The unit placed first in the straight platoon competition under the direction of Cadet Daniel Claxton. The 17-man platoon was required to execute a seven-minute exhibition squad event under the command of Cadet Michael Cordy. The 10-man squad received a trophy for its efforts.

The riflemen took third place honors in the Exhibition Platoon Competition and the Straight Squad competition. The University's Air Force ROTC Drill team placed first in the Straight Squad event.

Three riflemen won awards in individual competition. Cadet Walter Bensen took first place honors, while Cadets Jim Wolfinger and Claxton tied for third place.

World News Roundup

COLUMBUS (AP)-- Ohio State University Journalism school faculty members, including acting journalism school director Paul Barton, joined about 100 other University faculty members and students in picketing the university administration building yesterday.

The group said it was protesting the appointment of Doctor William Hall, Director of the J-school at O.S.U.

Barton, center of a journalism school controversy that began even before Hall's selection, said, "We are here to protest the handling of the journalism situation and the curious method of selecting a director."

Barton said the demonstrators were also concerned about the secrecy surrounding the new building which has been approved to house a new school of journalism at Ohio State. At least seven of the journalism school's 15-member faculty, including Pulitzer prize winner Ira Harkey, took part in the march.

PARIS (AP) -- France was reported yesterday to have told its major North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) that as of June 1 authorization for allied military aircraft to fly over France or land there will be subject to monthly review.

Previously the permission had been on an annual basis.

Informed sources said the new policy would permit the French to cut off flying privileges on 30 days notice.

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The House yesterday overwhelmingly defeated an effort to cut federal funds for payments to school districts with heavy populations of federal employees.

An amendment to cut the allotment of more than $416 million to some $183 million--the amount requested by President Johnson--failed by a standing vote of 132-25.

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Legislation to permit unions to picket construction jobs was removed from the House calendar yesterday. The action may mean the bill is dead for the current session of Congress.

Speaker John McCormack, (D-Mass.), said the bill was taken off the calendar at the request of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, (D-N.Y.), chairman of the Labor Committee. Powell originally sought House consideration of the bill, but now says he is opposed to it.

The bill would get around an existing ban against picketing on construction jobs on which more than one union has a contract, but only one union is involved in a strike.

SAIGON (AP) -- The military commander in South Viet Nam's farthest north district (General Ton That Dinh) says the area has been stabilized by his ban on demonstrations a few weeks ago, but the mayor of Da Nang said delays in promised elections may set off a new uprising against the Saigon regime.

Johnson Plan Seeks 'Free, United Europe'

WASHINGTON (AP)-- President Johnson has outlined a blueprint for the future development of Europe.

The President said at a White House ceremony Tuesday marking 1,000 years of Christianity and nationhood in Poland, that he has great hopes for a "free united Europe."

Johnson said the first necessity for moving toward unity of western Europe is an integrated Atlantic defense.

The President said an integrated Atlantic defense is also a pre-requisite for what he called "expanding partnership across the Atlantic and for reconciling differences with the East."

Johnson told several hundred Polish-Americans in the White House rose garden that if western Europe achieves greater unity, eastern Europe will be more easily approached.

"From this base of collaboration, fruitful ties to the East can best be built," he said.

The President said the U.S. will "encourage every constructive enrichment of the human, cultural and commercial ties between eastern Europe and the West."

Looking across to eastern Europe, President Johnson pointed to signs that rigid Communist theory is losing its hold on national economies. With this in mind, the President urged action toward three goals.

The first is to free Europe from "artificial political barriers that block the free movement of people, ideas and commerce."

The second goal would be to adopt internationally - inspected arms control arrangements to "remove the age-old fears of East and West alike."

Finally, Johnson suggested creating a Europe of independent friendly nations in which all people "know again the responsibilities and rewards of free political choices."

The first of five principles proposed by the President to attain the Europe he envisions is the necessity of an integrated Atlantic alliance. The second is a drive for western European unity, a basis from which he said can be launched a move for more fruitful ties to the East.

Johnson's third principle is the encouragement of cultural and commercial ties between eastern Europe and the West. As a fourth guiding principle, Johnson said, "We will continue to seek ways to improve relations between the people of Germany and fellow Europeans to the East."

Johnson also promised to move toward a peaceful settlement of the division of Germany on the principle of self-determination.

Finally, for a fifth principle, Johnson said, the U.S. welcomes growing participation by the nations of eastern Europe in common efforts to accelerate economic growth in developing areas of the world.

The President also said he wants congressional authorization that would allow him to remove at his own discretion special tariff regulations that curb trade between eastern Europe and the United States.

He said he is instructing Secretary of State Dean Rusk to present the proposed legislation to Congress.

State Department officials say details of the legislation are still being worked out. The United States already has trade agreements with Poland and Yugoslavia and officials believe Romania, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia would like to have similar trade agreements.

The willingness of Bulgaria and the Soviet Union to trade on a reciprocal basis is considered doubtful.

Johnson said that further trade expansion between the U.S. and communist eastern Europe can influence eastern European societies to develop along what Johnson called "paths favorable to world peace."

The President noted that Poland and other eastern European nations are "sensing the vigor of individual enterprise."

The President said they are permitting more de-centralized decision-making, rather than centralized state control and said they are developing better understanding of the profit motive and personal incentive.

Johnson added, "How hopeful these signs are, we cannot yet say. We can only trust they foreshadow a new reliance upon the individual as the most important element of society."

Professor In Profile

Hobby Is Teaching

By ROSEMARY KOVACS
Staff Writer

Surrounded by book-packed shelves and sitting at a desk cluttered with papers, Dr. Martha G. Weber, professor of education, had finally found time to sit down and talk about herself and her 20 years at Bowling Green.

Time is something she doesn't have enough of but that's because she is probably one of the most active women on campus.

"If I had time I would probably read a lot, play bridge or golf. But I guess my hobby is teaching and my professional duties," Dr. Weber said.

Dr. Weber was director of the Reading Clinic but resigned last year after having the position since 1946.

"I resigned because 19 years is a long time to do one thing. I decided I wanted to work on something else," she admits.

She teaches Education 402 and a research graduate course. Meanwhile, University committee meetings take up her other hours.

She is vice-chairman of the Faculty Senate and is one of the prime movers to set up a sixth-year program for graduate students specializing in the area of reading.

The wife of Dr. Joseph E. Weber, professor of chemistry, she is an alumna of Ohio Northern University and the Ohio State University. She received her Ph. D. from Duke University.

"I started out to be a lawyer, but I was offered a teaching position. Since the job offer came during the depression, I took it even though I didn't have a college degree," Dr. Weber recalled.

The early goal still is in her system, though, since she says she likes to argue for a cause.

"I like to sit down with a group and discuss issues. I'm always working toward the solution of some problem," she said.

"To me life is always more exciting if you set up goals. But once I achieve them, I lose interest in them and go on to something else," Dr. Weber said.

Recently she just returned from Boston, Mass., where she worked with sixty New England teachers interested in bettering their school systems' reading programs.

Dr. Weber is adviser to Cap and Gown, senior women's honorary society. She has been adviser to Chi Omega social sorority for 17 years and is president of Phi Kappa Phi, all campus honorary society.

In 1963 she was awarded the distinguished faculty award. Her name is listed in Who's Who of American Women, Who's Who in American Education, Who's Who in the Midwest, the International Biographical Dictionary and American Men of Science.

"My 20 years on campus have been exciting," Dr. Weber said. "I've always been involved in something because I like to be active." Considering the students, Dr. Weber answered, "I respect and accept them. I hope I understand them. I think BG has a better-than-average student body," she said.

"So if anyone ever asks me what I'd like to be marooned with on a desert island, I'd say those from Bowling Green."

Freshman Earns Red Cross Award

"I saw him laying on the bottom of the pool and my first thoughts were that the man was dead," Suzanne C. Snow saved the life of the man she thought was dead, though, and received a National Meritorious Award last week from the American Red Cross for the feat.

Miss Snow is a freshman in the College of Education and she received the award for saving the life of Jack Iverson at the Mayfield Heights Municipal Swimming Pool where she was a lifeguard last summer.

"I immediately dove after him," Miss Snow explained. "I had trouble handling him because he weighed about 200 pounds and the water was six feet deep and I am only about five feet eight inches tall."

Joseph E. Parker, also a recipient of an award gave Mr. Iverson artificial respiration, Miss Snow said.

"Mr. Iverson later told me that he felt an epileptic attack coming and was swimming to the wall when it occurred," she explained.

"When I heard I received the award, I was shocked," Miss Snow said. "I wanted to forget the whole thing because it was an unpleasant experience and it was my duty to save him."

"It was my parents who wanted me to come home for the annual dinner sponsored by the American Red Cross on April 24," Miss Snow said. "I just wanted to forget the experience and then all these exciting things happened."

The National Meritorious Award is presented for the outstanding lifesaving experience during the year. Reports are sent to the Red Cross by the physician in charge, the parents of the person, and all people involved in the rescue such as owner or manager of pool.

Miss Snow is an Angel Flight pledge of the Air Force Reserve Officer's Training Corps and is majoring in Spanish. She also taught a swim class for the mentally retarded at the pool last summer.

"I think the experience was good for me, and next time I think I will have a better idea what to do," Miss Snow said.

"I have made several other savings, mostly of small children who have gotten to far from the wall in water over their heads, but this was my first big save," Miss Snow said.

She has been a lifeguard at the pool for three years, and plans to return to her job in the sun again this summer.

"What really makes me mad is that the lifeguard has to also be a policeman, trying to keep people from smoking and children from running," Miss Snow said. "This detracts from my real job of looking for people who are in trouble in the water."

Marshall Dean Dampens Water Fight Enthusiasm

MARSHALL UNIVERSITY--Water fights also were in the news recently at this West Virginia campus. About 300 Greeks fought for five hours, with fraternities and sororities attacking each other, using everything from buckets to a fire truck, trying to put each other's houses under water, the "Parthenon" reported.

The following morning all sorority and fraternity presidents were called to the office of the dean. The dean told the students that "such things as water battles were all right once a year," but that a continuation of such childish pranks could not be tolerated.

WITTENBERG UNIVERSITY--The first anti-war and anti-anti-war-picket-pickets to demonstrate at Wittenberg marched on downtown Springfield recently. About 45 anti-war pickets and 12 WU anti-anti-war-pickets were involved. The anti-war pickets were composed mostly of members from the Committee to End the War in Vietnam at Antioch College and the Yellow Springs Committee for Peace and Freedom.

OHIO NORTHERN UNIVERSITY--Twenty-five Delta Zeta pledges recently spent a Saturday behind bars in the Ada, Ohio jail. According to a story in "The Northern Review," the girls had been instructed by an active to paint pink stripes around the trash can in front of a campus building but were apprehended by an officer and escorted to jail for a 45-minute stay.

KENT STATE UNIVERSITY--Requests for campus housing at Kent State next September have passed the saturation point despite the completion of two new residence halls, reported The Daily Kent Stater. University officials said that the most serious shortage is space for women.

Indians Top Yanks

NEW YORK (Special)-- Maybe the Yankees ought to buy, steal or trade with Cleveland to get Fred Whitfield away from the Tribe.

The tall first baseman did it again last night with a home run in the ninth inning off losing pitcher Steve Hamilton, to give Cleveland a 2-1 decision over New York.

Cleveland scored first, as Vic Davalillo led the seventh inning off with a cheap single down the first base line. Left fielder Chuck Hinton followed with another of the bargain-basement variety, and, combined with a throwing error by New York starter Mel Stottlemyre, it allowed Davalillo to score.

The Yanks came back in the bottom of the eighth frame, as Pepitone opened with a single to right. Joe moved to third on another single, and scored when pinch hitter Lou Clinton

Backfields Hold Key For 1966 Footballers

By LARRY DONALD
Issue Editor

There were times last year when it seemed defensive back Joe Souliere was the only effective offensive threat Bowling Green possessed.

The problem was that 75-yard touchdowns on punt returns were at a premium, although Souliere did manage several of them. Defenses jammed the middle against the Falcons to thwart the up-the-middle power supplied by fullbacks Stew Williams and Tom Luettke. And when coach Bob Gibson looked to his halfbacks for an outside attack, he found the situation lacking.

This explains why he has been watching his halfback prospects so carefully this spring.

Three men have been in the running for the left halfback position and two are contenders at right half.

"If nothing else, our experience is going to make us a lot better," Gibson said. "And with the available talent we should be much improved."

Wagoner, Weger and Souliere have formed the defensive backfield for the past two seasons and will be on the firing line again next fall, according to Gibson. This goes no matter who gets the nod on offense.

"I think they have to be the best in the Mid-American Conference, with their experience and ability," he said about the three.

"In fact there aren't many schools anywhere in the country who have a better defensive backfield."

During their sophomore years, the three became noted for clutch pass interceptions. Souliere probably made the biggest play of the 1964 season when he nabbed an Ernie Kellerman aerial late in the game to save a win over Miami and head the Falcons toward the MAC crown.

Last fall Weger earned second team All-American honors and All-MAC honors. Souliere was an All-MAC choice and was honored as Back-of-the-Week by the Conference following his heroics against Marshall.

Gibson indicated that all should be ready for Saturday's Orange and Brown clash, except Weger, who is out for track and will not be in uniform. Garrett sustained a sprained ankle, but is expected to play.

The Falcons ran a full scrimmage last night as a final preparation for the game Saturday.

OSU Tops Freshmen In Lacrosse

The Bowling Green freshman lacrosse team suffered its first setback of the season May 4, when it was edged out by a more experienced Ohio State "B" team 9-7.

"I thought we played an excellent game," commented the frosh coach Denny Dembia, "and we were in it right until the end."

Terry Smith scored four goals for the Baby Birds to close in on the teams' leading scorer, Pete Farrow, who was held to two goals.

Farrow had scored three and four goals in leading the stickmen to victories against Ball State and Oberlin, respectively.

The yearlings take to the road May 18 for their final game of the season against Defiance varsity lacrosse squad.

"Our whole club is looking forward to that one," said Coach Dembia. "They'll be getting a chance to show just how much they've learned this season."

MANAGEMENT-INTERN PROGRAM

For Students of Bowling Green:

In cooperation with the University Placement Office, the Office of Student Financial Aid and the College of Business Administration.

This program offers managerial training in the third largest industry in the nation, the food industry. Positions are salaried with a $50/24 hour/week schedule during the school year and a $100/48 hour/week schedule during the summer.

We are interested in male juniors or second semester sophomores. Students applying need not be business majors, however students in the College of Business Administration may qualify for the College's management-intern program.

Students who complete this management-intern program are not obligated to remain with Frisch's, but will be offered regular positions upon graduation with a starting salary in the $7,500/year category.

Interview application forms are available in the Placement Office, 5th floor, Ad. Bldg. until May 6, 1966. Interviews will be scheduled for May 9, 1966, in the Placement Office.

One Man's Opinion

Scholler's Chance
At Spring HarvestBy JOHN GUGGER
Sports Editor

Scotch-taped to the wall of room 201 B in Memorial Hall are the photos of five young men clad in white shorts and lettered t-shirts.

One of the youths stands conspicuously above the lot, a seeming look of confidence on his face. Just below the pictures the word "recruits" is printed.

It's all a joke, of course, for the pictures are of Lew Alcindor and his UCLA teammates, generally conceded to be the greatest group of freshmen ever assembled.

For Warren Scholler, head housekeeper of 201 B and any other coach in the nation whose name isn't Johnny Wooden, a ream of such tasty fruit in a recruiting season would be no more than a dream.

In addition to Alcindor, the Uclan frosh boast three other high school All-Americans and a boy who drove 2,000 miles to the coast to earn a starting berth on the team. This is the same team that humiliated their varsity proteges 79-62.

While Scholler wouldn't turn his back on that group, he has set more realistic goals for himself. And so far he seems reasonably pleased with this spring's harvest.

At least three top-notch high school stars are slated for September initiation to college life on the BG campus. In the words of Scholler, "The recruiting season is a long way from over and the boys who are coming here are high-class. They will make good ballplayers."

Adrian Zuber (Lima Shawnee), Robert Smith (Garrett, Indiana), and Bill Donnelly (Easton, Pennsylvania) comprise Scholler's top efforts thus far.

Zuber was a starting forward at 6-4 for the Shawnee Indians the past two years. During this span the Lima club lost only two games, in the state semifinals last year and in the regional finals this year.

"Adrian is a very hard-nosed kid," said Scholler, "and he wants to play basketball."

The captain of the winningest high school team in Indiana the past three years, Smith is a deceptive, quick guard with leadership qualities. He stands 6-2 and academically is in the top five per cent of his graduating class.

Donnelly was an outstanding Pennsylvania high-schooler, and was invited to the Pennsylvania high school All-Star classic where he was voted the most valuable player.

Another prospect Scholler has high hopes for is a 6-4 forward from New Vienna, Hugh Terrell. "This kid is still growing and could be the sleeper of the whole bunch," he said. Terrell was voted statewide honorable mention by one press service.

One thing Scholler admits he is still looking for is the "big name" player. A prize that got away last weekend was Toledo Libbey's all-state guard, Joe Cooke.

Cooke had narrowed his decision down to BG, Toledo, and the Hoosier school. "It would have been nice to get the kid," said Scholler. "That would have given us our big name player. But we're still in the running for a few of the others."

One other recruit remains questionable, Denny McLemore, a teammate of Cooke's at Libbey. McLemore is in the lower third of his graduating class and will have to score high on his college board to be admitted here.

A member of last year's varsity basketball team will definitely not be back in the Orange and Brown toga next year. Cliff Williams, one of the most naturally gifted athletes ever to appear on the Falcon sports scene, has dropped out of school. A source close to the situation has attributed Williams' actions to "personal problems."

In addition to Williams, several other members of last year's team are having academic trouble and will not be eligible unless grades are brought up.

Center position on next year's varsity shapes up as a three-way battle between incumbents Albert Dixon, Bill Masonis, and Duke transfer, Phil Benedict.

Benedict was an all-state performer in Michigan before enrolling at the Durham campus in 1964. He was ineligible last year because of the transfer.

Whitehouse Stars
In Golf, ClassroomBy TIM CHURCHILL
Sports Writer

Ron Whitehouse, a junior majoring in economics, is in more activities than most students could possibly handle.

He is a member of the Student Court, Omicron Delta Kappa, men's leadership society, Phi Eta Sigma, freshman scholastic honor society, and Delta Nu Alpha, professional transportation fraternity, and he maintains a 3.6 accumulative grade average.

He also married and the father of a five-year-old girl. But he still finds time to play on the varsity golf team.

Whitehouse obviously is a very busy man, but he enjoys it all the same. "I can't stand to sit around and do nothing," he explains.

Forrest Creason, Falcon golf coach, is very high on Whitehouse, one of four returning lettermen on the golf team.

"Ron is a very dedicated young man," Creason said. "He works hard, and he has a wonderful attitude toward the game. We can insert him almost anywhere in about 10 years old," Whitehouse says, "but I think one of my biggest thrills came last year when I was fifth in the MAC (Mid-American Conference) championships."

Among the many tournaments he won as a school boy are the Toledo District Juniors championship in 1963, the Highland Meadows Junior Invitational in 1961, the 1962 Toledo District Golfers Association Junior Invitational at the Sylvania Country Club, his home course, and the Great Lakes League (GLL) championship in 1962, his junior year. He also placed fifth in the State JayCee tourney in 1962.

Besides his golfing feats at Oregon Clay High School, Ron found time enough to be a second team defense all GLL football player, a second-team all GLL basketball player, and an honor student.

Asked for his evaluation of this year's varsity squad, Whitehouse remarked, "This team has real good potential, but we just haven't reached our peak yet. When we start playing like we can there won't be a team in the MAC that will beat us."

Whitehouse became the third recipient of the Harold Anderson Scholarship awarded by the Bowling Green Alumni Club of Greater Toledo. The scholarship is awarded annually to an outstanding student who has an active interest in the field of athletics.

Whitehouse is an example of a student athlete, which is definitely not the same as the so-called athlete student, who takes time out of his athletics to study. Whitehouse takes time out of his studies to be an athlete. Coach Creason is hoping he will take enough time out to become the 1966 MAC champ.

the lineup and be sure that he will do a fine job."

Whitehouse feels that the best part of his game is in his short iron play--from the five iron on up. "I usually don't have too much trouble with those irons," Whitehouse commented, "but my putting has always given me a lot of trouble."

Creason is quick to agree with Whitehouse, although he feels he "is very steady" all around. "Ron always gives us a good game, and although he may not always be the medalist, he is very seldom any lower than third or fourth," Creason remarked.

"I've played golf since I was
